HOW PANTHER HELPS

A large German manufacturer of scientific and medical imaging equipment needed a safe and secure method for moving their high-value and sensitive product. Panther provided comprehensive logistics support, including special handling service, warehousing, and inventory control, dramatically improving time-to-market and eliminating damage in transit.

ELITE SERVICES

With technical experts on staff, Panther understands the high-technology industry better than anyone in the business.

From individual components to large scale data center installations, Panther has developed a reputation for operational excellence in the high-tech community.
